

PBV FAQ

What is the Project-Based Voucher Program?

Project-Based Voucher is a rental subsidy program where the subsidy is attached to the apartment.

How do I apply to a Project-Based Voucher program?

Using the applicant portal, you can apply online when the waiting list is open.

How do I apply to different properties or different waiting lists?

You will use one electronic pre-application to apply for different properties or waiting lists. AAHC maintains one waiting list for all AAHC-owned Project-Based Voucher (PBV) properties. To apply, select the AAHC Owned PBV waiting list. If you are interested in other properties not owned by AAHC, simply select the appropriate waiting list for those properties or different waiting list.

APPLICANT FAQs

How do you find new waiting lists?

Update your application in the portal and once it's completed, the open waiting list will appear.

How can I check my waiting list status?

Using the applicant portal, you can check your status on the waiting list. We cannot accurately provide you with a timeline for selection from a list.

What waiting list statuses will you see?

'On list' On that building's list and waiting for selection. 'Selection' Check your certification tab in the applicant portal and complete it to be considered for the housing opportunity. 'Removed' Removed from the list, and the reason will be listed.

Does your position on one list affect the other lists you are on?

No, each waiting list is treated separately, and you may be at a different place on each list.

What to expect after selection?

Complete the intake form and upload the required documents. Once under review, you will be contacted by a housing specialist to discuss the application. Selection does not guarantee immediate placement; you must meet all the qualifications for the program.

What's the difference between PBV and HCV?

The PBV rental assistance is attached to the property and isn't transferable.

How do preferences affect the application?

In general, we work in order of the waiting list based on when the names were added. If a property has a preference, families that meet the preference will be selected from the waiting list with priority.
